NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenyan police have presented in court 5 suspects arrested in connection with the Islamic extremist attack that killed 148 people. The court granted police 30 more days to investigate the suspects before charging them in court. The five suspects who appeared in court are: Mohammed Adan Surow, Osman Abdi Dakane, Mohammed Abdi Abikar, Hassan Aden Hassan and Sahal Diriye Hussien. The police say the five supplied guns to the four gunmen who carried out the attack last week on Garissa University College in which 148 people were killed. The police said they also want more time to investigate a sixth suspect, Tanzanian national Rashid Charles Mberekesho, who is being held in Garissa, in northeastern Kenya.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian state television is reporting that the chief of Iran's powerful Revolutionary Guard has offered his support to Iranian nuclear negotiators. The reported comments by Gen. Mohammad Ali Jafari come as some 200 hard-liners protested Tuesday against the framework deal struck last week between Iran and six world powers. State TV's website quoted Jafari as saying: "With God's grace, the revolutionary children of Islamic Iran have succeeded in defending the rights of the Iranian nation and the Iranian nation and the Guard appreciate their honest political efforts." He also said Iran as a nation supported the diplomatic efforts. The Revolutionary Guard is the single most powerful institution in Iran. It exerts a strong behind-the-scenes role in Iranian affairs.

LONDON (AP) — British police say they have received a report that two missing 17-year-old boys are in Syria. West Yorkshire police said Tuesday the boys had disappeared from their homes last week. Police say they are believed to have taken a flight from Manchester airport to Turkey on March 31. Counter-terrorism police say a report indicates the boys then traveled on to Syria, where the Islamic State group is fighting the government and other rebel factions. Assistant Chief Constable Mark Milsom said the boys' families are "gravely worried" and that the top police priority is to bring the boys home safely. A growing number of young people have tried to travel from Britain to Syria to join extremists there.

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — A lawyer for former New England Patriots player Aaron Hernandez has told jurors that there is only one possible and lawful verdict in his client's murder trial: not guilty. Defense attorney James Sultan began his closing arguments Tuesday morning in the trial, which has lasted more than two months. Hernandez is accused of the June 2013 killing of Odin Lloyd, who was dating the sister of his fiancée. Lloyd was found shot to death at an industrial park less than a mile from Hernandez's home. Each side has 90 minutes to deliver closing arguments to summarize their case to the jury. The defense goes first. Sultan spent several minutes asking jurors to forget what they have heard about Hernandez in the media and outside the courtroom. Jurors are expected to get the case later Tuesday.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An unusually cold spring storm is bringing near-winter temperatures to parts of Northern California, dumping heavy rain and hail on some areas and snow in the mountains. However, forecasters say the storm, while welcome, will do little to ease the state's historic drought. The National Weather Service says up to 2 feet of snow could fall Tuesday in the Sierra Nevada. Motorists are urged to use caution on mountain roads, where snow levels could reach 3,500 feet. Hail was reported in parts of the San Francisco Bay Area. Further north, temperatures in Eureka and across Humboldt County dipped into the 30s overnight as the system moved in. The storm is expected to spread moderate rain down the Central Coast to the Los Angeles basin by Tuesday afternoon before dwindling early Wednesday.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard says a three-mile stretch of the Mississippi River in southern Louisiana is limited to one-way traffic upriver, a day after a ship broke free of its mooring and hit two other vessels. Damon Williams, a civilian in the Coast Guard command center, said ships were only moving upriver Tuesday near Convent, between New Orleans and Baton Rouge. The Coast Guard had closed several miles of river on Monday after the Privocean — a 751-foot bulk carrier — broke free, drifted and struck a 98-foot towing vessel, the Texas. Petty Officer Carlos Vega said the Texas took on water and grounded on a river bank. Authorities said the Privocean drifted further downriver and hit the 816-foot tank ship Bravo, which spilled about 420 gallons of crude oil.

INKSTER, Mich. (AP) — A 115-year-old Detroit-area woman is listed as the world's oldest living person following the death of a 116-year-old Arkansas woman. Jeralean Talley of Inkster tops a list maintained by the Los Angeles-based Gerontology Research Group, which tracks the world's longest-living people. Gertrude Weaver, who was the oldest documented person for a few days, died Monday. Talley was born May 23, 1899. Asked for her key to longevity, the Detroit Free Press reports she echoed previous answers on the topic. She says: "It's coming from above. That's the best advice I can give you. It's not in my hands or your hands." She says people should "treat the other fellow like you want to be treated. You don't tell a lie on me so I won't tell a lie on you."

ROME (AP) — Linger too long near George Clooney's Italian villa in hopes of catching a glimpse of the actor-director and his new bride and you might pay dearly. The town of Laglio, where Clooney owns an 18th-century mansion with private dock on Lake Como, has hiked fines for those who create "problems of public order" when gathering to gawk on the main lakeside road behind the villa or approach by boat closer than 100 meters (110 yards) offshore. Mayor Roberto Pozzi said in a phone interview Tuesday he signed ordinances introducing fines as stiff as 500 euros ($550), five times higher than before. Clooney married London-based human rights lawyer Amal Alamuddin in September. Pozzi says so far "common sense" has prevailed and no one has been fined.

Voters also are deciding on whether to change the 126-year-old practice of having the most senior justice be chief justice.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama has told National Public Radio that Governor Scott Walker may need to "bone up on foreign policy." Obama says the likely Republican presidential contender would be foolish to follow through with a vow to revoke a nuclear deal with Iran. Walker says he'd do that right away as president.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The military has identified the Wisconsin National Guard member who died in Japan as 22-year-old Kelly Tomfohrde of Auburndale. She died Sunday after falling from a fifth-floor window. Tomfohrde was deployed with the Guard's 115th Fighter Wing.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker owes some good eats to his North Carolina counterpart. The governors had a friendly wager on last night's NCAA men's basketball championship game. The Duke Blue Devils downed the Badgers 68-63. So, now Walker has to make good. He's to send cheese, root beer and sausage to North Carolina Governor Pat McCrory. McCrory had promised a package of barbecue, coleslaw, hushpuppies and Cheerwine, a cherry-flavored soft drink, if Duke lost.

CHICAGO (AP) — Cubs fans have got to go -- but many can't find a place to go. The Chicago baseball fans are taking to social media to gripe about the lack of restrooms at Wrigley Field. A massive renovation project at the ballpark kept some of the bathrooms closed during the season opener Sunday. The team is apologizing for the inconvenience. Some of the fans say they missed part of the game because of the long and uncomfortable bathroom lines. The Cubs say they'll add portable potties to help fans looking for some relief.

BEDFORD TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — High school shop teacher Paul Cook at first thought it was a joke when he got a call from NASA. The space agency wanted students from Michigan's Bedford High School to make parts for the International Space Station. Now, the kids are building lockers where the astronauts will keep their experiments. Cook tells the Monroe News it's a great opportunity for the kids. Bedford High is one of 77 schools nationwide taking part in a program called High School Students United with NASA to Create Hardware, or NASA HUNCH for short.
